Re: Air Freight Handling Capacity
Austin Straubel International Airport

Dear Mr. Evert:

As the third largest commercial airport in the State of Wisconsin, Austin Straubel International Airport (GRB) is capable of handling any aircraft with the exception of an Airbus A-380. Delta/Northwest Air Lines have frequently operated B-747-400 aircraft into GRB in years past. Cargo operators have the ability to utilize a large concrete apron to load/off-load freight. United States Customs and Border Protection (CBP) operates a facility located on the airport to clear international passengers as well as freight shipments.

Depending on the size of the freight operation, the airport has identified over 350-acres, in a soon-to-be-released Master Plan, for aeronautical purposes, including dedicated air cargo development. Infrastructure including taxiways and aircraft parking aprons would be constructed, as needed, for additional air cargo operations. Finally, the airport can offer the favorable tax opportunities of locating in Foreign Trade Zone No 167, located on airport property.

If you have any further questions, please feel free to contact me in the airport administrative offices.

Very truly yours,

AUSTIN STRAUBEL INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT
